

... the current situation or "what is" (A),

... what you want the situation to be or "what might or should be" (B), and

... a plan for getting from where you are to where you want to be or
"feedback designed to reduce the gap" ($A \rightarrow B = C$).

- what do I want to learn or understand better?

A: As we decided to use react/javascript in the project I feel I have started to learn the basics of react. The use of scrum has gone smoothly so far.

B: I want to have more experience of react so that I can use it more efficiently in the future.

C: To reach this goal I would take the following measures:

- Read up on guides and videos online.

- how can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

A: We have started working with react/javascript and I feel I can easily help someone else when they are having problems by watching their screen and being able to share my thoughts about the problem and its potential solution.

B: The same as last week, I want to always be able to communicate the knowledge I have of a certain topic to the members of the group that does not have that knowledge so that they may be able to use that in the project and accelerate our progress.

C: The goal and means to complete it is still the same as last week.

- what is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

A: We have started working with scrum and are using user stories and tasks for each sprint and I feel it is working fine so far

B: I want to help the group organize the project process.

C: To reach this goal I would take the following measures:

- Help with setting goals to work towards for each sprint.
- Keeping up with the groups progress and discuss with the group the current progress if I believe it to be necessary.

- what is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

A: Actively discussing the progress the group has made and trying to stay on topic for the crucial problems. Always trying to activate the members that are less active.

B: I want everyone to be able to tell if they are not sure about being able to complete a task and feel safe about discussing new ideas. I want everyone to be active.

C: To reach this goal I would take the following measures:

- Listen to new ideas and discuss them.
- Try to find a solution if someone cannot finish their task.
- Notify the group if I feel that some/someone is not as active as the others.
