

Individual Reflections

2021-05-24

Felix Nilsson

Structure:

A: The current situation or "what is".

B: What you want the situation to be or "what might or should be".

A→B: A plan for getting from where you are to where you want to be or "feedback designed to reduce the gap".

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

A: This week I focused mostly on writing the report, while others worked on the presentation and hosting our website.

B: I would like to understand how the website is hosted.

A→B: Researching different services on the internet, and asking the team members working on hosting the website on how it works.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new? (Same as previous week)

A: I try to keep up to date with the documentation of libraries we are working with, for example ant-design or bcrypt, to make sure that we first try to use components and tools from their api before we build something ourselves.

B: Just continue improving, I still sometimes waste time on making my own solution when there are better ones readily available.

A→B: By continuing to code and experiment you catch a lot of errors, and as time goes by you stop making the same mistakes, and you notice when other people make them.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

A: This week I worked on the report, where we set up all the sections, so that next week everyone can focus on writing their part.

B: I want to finish the report early, and make sure it is of high quality.

A→B: I will make sure this is the case by working with the team, and proof reading the report a lot.

- What is my contribution towards the I team's use of Scrum? (Same as last week)

A: Whenever meetings stall, or the topic goes somewhere that is not related to what we need to be discussing, I try to direct it back to the correct topic.

B: I think our meetings could be shortened or more effective.

A→B: Maybe scheduling a break would help people to be more concentrated during long meetings.
